Basham Appointed to Labor Committee

State Senator Ray Basham (D-Taylor) recently announced his appointment to the influential National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) Labor and Workforce Committee.

Basham said he hopes that his years of experience as a union activist will be helpful during his service on the committee.

"It's an honor to be asked to help represent our state on the NCSL committee dedicated to identifying and addressing the problems facing America's working families," he stated. "NCSL provides legislators from all over the country an opportunity to share ideas and influence public policy nationally."

The National Conference of State Legislatures is based in Washington, D.C. According to the official NCSL Website, the organization is dedicated to improving the quality and effectiveness of state legislatures, promoting policy innovation and communication among state legislatures, and ensuring state legislatures are a strong, cohesive voice in the federal system.

Senator Basham worked for the Ford Motor Company for 30 years, and served as an employee support services representative for 12 years.

Basham also served 19 years on the United Auto Workers Local 245 Bargaining Committee. □

City's Annual Programs Inspire Romulus Residents To Start Their Spring Cleaning

Just in time for spring cleaning, the City of Romulus has announced dates for three annual programs designed to help our community look its best.

Clean Sweep Day

Clean Sweep Day, a project spearheaded by Councilman LeRoy Burcroff, has been set for Saturday, May 17.

"The City's Clean Sweep program was a big success last year," said Burcroff. "Many individuals and community groups donated their time to pick up trash throughout the town."

Citizens who want to do their part on Clean Sweep Day may choose to work, on their own, in a neighborhood of their choice, or they can report to Romulus City Hall between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. to receive an "assignment" and, if needed, some equipment.

"The city's ordinance people have been keeping an eye out for heavily littered areas in need of cleanup," Burcroff said. "They have also assembled materials such as trash bags, 'pokors,' and gloves for volunteers' use."

Burcroff advises volunteers to take the utmost care when gathering trash and bagging it for curb-side disposal.

"Avoid dangerous debris like broken glass," he said. "Just push it to the curb or some other out-of-the-way area rather than try to pick it up."

Burcroff said he hopes that this year's turnout will be even better.

"Taking part in Clean Sweep is a great way to show your pride in Romulus," he explained. "It's an opportunity to assume a caring, responsible role in your neighborhood."

To find out more about Clean Sweep, contact the office of Mayor Alan R. Lambert: 734-942-7570.

Free Dumping

Spring cleaning has a way of turning up a big bunch of unwanted trash – more, in fact, than can be readily disposed of at the curb in front of your home. To help you get rid of the mess without ridding yourself of your hard-earned money, the City is sponsoring free dumping for Romulus residents only on Saturday, May 17, and again during the week of Monday, May 19, through Saturday, May 24.

For a complete list of dumping rules, pick up a flyer at Romulus City Hall or watch for the May 16 issue of "the little paper."

City-wide Rummage Sale

But what do you do with all those "treasures" that you couldn't bear to throw away, despite the fact that your closets and shelves are crammed completely full? Sell them during the annual City-wide Rummage Sale Weekend, set for May 29–June 1, and cram your wallet with cash, instead.

To register for a free one-, two-, three-, or four-day rummage-sale permit, and also take advantage of free advertising for the event, stop in at the Recreation Center (located at 36515 Bibbins) by 12 p.m. on Thursday, May 8. Late registrants will still receive a free permit, but will not be included in flyers and newspaper ads. For more info, call the Recreation Center: 734-942-6852. □

School District Purchases 10 Defibrillators

William Routhier, director of business and operations for Romulus Community Schools, recently reported that the district has purchased 10 defibrillators for use in medical emergencies.

"We now have one defibrillator for each district building, with two at the High School," he said.

Routhier noted that staff members will be attending workshops to receive training on the use of the defibrillators. District nurse Carol Wolan already has presented one such workshop, which covered topics such as proper body positioning, pad placement, and operation of the machine itself.

Funds for the new defibrillators came from the school district's $34-million bond program, which voters approved in 1999.

"The program has earned more than $2.5 million in interest and financed several additional projects thanks to careful construction management led by Bill Routhier, [maintenance director] Don Morris, and Barton Mallow [construction company]," said district spokesperson Dick Kruse. "Their expertise has provided many savings opportunities for the district." □

New Animal Grooming Shop Is Paws-itively Dedicated to Pets

Fluff-n-Puff's Robin Modrzynski takes the utmost care when grooming her furry friends.

By Rikki Strobos

If a love for your profession is any guarantee, then Romulus's new Fluff-n-Puff pet-grooming shop is sure to be a howling success.

"My partner and I genuinely care for animals," said Karen Bober, who co-owns Fluff-n-Puff with Robin Modrzynski. "We treat every pet as if it were our own."

Bober, the older of the two at 57, has been grooming animals off and on since 1967. Although her 34-year-old partner may not be able to match her experience, Bober says Modrzynski is every bit as dedicated.

"Robin is new to grooming, having worked at it for about a year, but she's a quick study with a heart of pure puppy," Bober smiled.

According to Modrzynski, she and her partner are already contemplating an expansion into other pet-care areas.

"As we get to know the community and its needs, we may begin offering additional services such as doggy day-care, obedience classes, and conformation classes for show animals," she explained. "If people would like to see Fluff-n-Puff begin to offer these or other services, they should stop in or give us a call so that we know there's an interest out there."

Modrzynski, a Westland native who has lived in Romulus for 17 years, believes that the city is truly in need of a hometown grooming shop – and a new animal shelter, as well.

"We are great supporters of the fund-raising project initiated by Councilman Bill Wadsworth," she said. "Karen and I have a number of plans for ways that we can help out."

Besides kicking around several fund-raising ideas, which they hope to implement soon, the two have already begun a program to benefit current shelter residents that face the possibility of being destroyed.

"Once a month, Robin and I are taking a dog from the shelter, giving it a complete grooming, and putting it up for 'adoption,'" said Bober. "We encourage anyone who is looking for a loving addition to their household to consider choosing a shelter animal."

Bober, originally from Detroit, is a widow who has lived in the Willis area for 38 years. She has 6 married children and 13 grandchildren.

Modrzynski and her husband Donald have a 16-year-old daughter and 2 sons, ages 13 and 11.

Both Bober and Modrzynski also breed and show Shetland sheepdogs ("shelties").

Fluff-n-Puff – located at 36522 Goddard Road in downtown Romulus – is open Mondays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

For more information, please call 734-229-0005. □

Romulus Board of Education Receives Social Studies Report

When the Romulus Community Schools department of social sciences made its annual K-12 curriculum presentation to the Board of Education, there was one word in particular that kept cropping up.

"Economics is now an important part of the MEAP [Michigan Education Assessment Program] test, and this necessitates a K-12 approach for student mastery," explained Don Foley, secondary strand leader and assistant principal at Romulus High School.

Kindergarten students from Merriman teacher Laura Smith's class began the department's economics demonstration with brief skits about the goods and services provided by people in different occupations. The students, attired in colorful "uniforms," described various careers that they might adopt, including physician, fireman, and policeman.

Then, first-graders from teacher Barbara Knight's class made presentations about particular products and all the jobs that are related to their manufacture, distribution, and sale. They explained, for example, that it would take the jobs of sheep farmer, sheep shearer, yarn maker, yarn dyer, designer, weaver, truck driver, stockperson, and salesperson to make and sell a rug.

Next, eighth-grader Jessica Mills outlined how Middle School teacher and social studies department head Dan McCabe created a micro-economy/society right in his classroom. McCabe devised a social system that allows students to elect leaders, find jobs, save/invest their money, and purchase goods and services. Students are required to keep track of how their income and what type of products they can purchase. When the "game" concludes, each student can "cash out" by selling his/her investments to McCabe, but only for the value he places on them. Students then total up their assets/liabilities and see how they "came out" monetarily.

"The students really learn from this real-life situation," McCabe explained. "They can see how far money goes and how fast debts can add up."

Romulus High School junior Toni Gibson, a student in Shawn Shivnen's class, concluded the presentation with a demonstration of her junior project, which required her to compare three jobs – one for a high-school graduate, another for a high-school graduate with technical training, and a third for a college graduate – and the life-styles that they would support. Gibson had to give an estimate of income and expenses for each of the three jobs she chose: court reporter, legal assistant, and lawyer. The straight-A student concluded that she would prefer the life-style of an attorney, and noted that the increased income level associated with that career would allow her to purchase a new car and house, marry, and afford a family.

District social studies consultant Charles Kidwell and elementary strand leader/Merriman principal Shellie Moore also attended the presentation. Kidwell has been the chief architect of the district's individualized education plans for sixth- and eighth-grade students, as well as the education portfolios that students compile and forward to colleges/universities and future employers. □

Merriman kindergarten and first-grade students who helped the district's social studies department make its annual curriculum presentation to the Romulus Board of Education included (from left) Drew Wilkerson, Rehman Sheikh, Marrell Hayes, Nikol Ray, Ashleigh Blair, Shanya Sturdivant, Daniel Hollis, and Elwin Ready.

First-division ratings were earned by the Middle School Symphonic Band under the direction of Mark Fernandez and the High School Jazz Band under director Henry James.

Fernandez, who is also head of the district's music department, was very complimentary of his symphonic band and its outstanding performance at Flat Rock High School. The band, performing in Class "A", received a "I" rating from each of the four judges at the festival.

The RHS Jazz Band, performing in Class "A" at Jackson High School, received "I" ratings from all three of the festival judges. □

"Drummunity" Shows Students Rhythm of Creativity, Wellness

Clinician Lori Fithian (back) demonstrates some rhythm patterns for Barth students at a recent "drummunity" clinic.

A concept called "drummunity" has captured the full attention of Barth Elementary music teacher Kevin Cook's classes. The word "drummunity" was invented by clinician Lori Fithian of Ann Arbor to describe the community-building process that happens when people come together around a circle of drums.

Using authentic African drums called ashikos and djiembes, Fithian—a graduate of the University of Michigan School of Music—has developed her own unique drum-circle techniques. She believes that practicing them can play a powerful role in a person's life.

"The drummunity circle promotes stress release, personal growth, cooperation, listening skills, team building, diversity awareness, spontaneity, creativity, relaxation, and wellness," she stated.

Clinician Fithian studied with Arthur Hull, author of Drum Circle Spirit – Empowering Human Potential Through Rhythm, and with neurologist and co-founder of HealthRhythms, Dr. Barry Bittman.

Fithian also has several drummunity groups that meet in Ann Arbor on a weekly basis. □

Later, students got to free-style some rhythms of their own.

Cub Scouts Pack 872 Hosts Annual Blue & Gold Banquet

On February 9, 2003, Saint Aloysius Cub Scout Pack 872 held their annual Blue & Gold Banquet.

During the program, Webelo Scouts Brandon Gregg, John Lewkowicz, Ryan McLachlan, and Alec Staten earned the Arrow of Light Award — Cub Scouting's highest honor. In the subsequent cross-over ceremony, Ryan McLachlan was accepted into Boy Scout Troop 833 by Robert McLachlan, scoutmaster. Brandon Gregg, John Lewkowicz, and Alec Staten were accepted into Troop 872 by scoutmaster Thomas Witherow.

Next came the presentation of the coveted One Hour Per Week Award, which then-cubmaster Mark J. Lewkowicz* gave to the leaders who have contributed at least one hour of their time per week per scout to the pack. Leaders earning this prestigious honor were Lisa Staten, committee chair; Derek Dotson, assistant cubmaster; Theresa McLachlan, treasurer; Virginia Silvey, Tiger Den leader; Theresa Kerr, Wolf Den leader; Diana Druyor, Bear Den leader; Janine Yandura, Bear Den assistant leader; Trish Wands, Webelo One Den leader (not present); and Gayle Gregg, Webelo Two Den leader.
